

Transcript of Councilman Ken Morris Jr.'s Visit to Community Outreach Services

Councilman Ken Morris, Jr.: Well good morning everyone. I'm here at Community Outreach Services, which is a food pantry here on 6th Avenue here in Paterson, and I am just excited and pleased about some of the activity that's going on down here in Paterson by two very dedicated volunteers, who actually started this pantry in the foyer of their own home on 17th Avenue.

And it's grown into something that's absolutely phenomenal and I encourage folks to come on down—those needing the services—and I also encourage folks to come on down and make donations. Make donations, financial donations, to this particular pantry because of the phenomenal work that they're doing. This is work being done by the Reverend Wayne Brown and his lovely wife Lisa. And you also, we see volunteers who are also very beautiful and dedicated. So don't just come down because of the pretty women, come down for the work that they're doing.

You know, over the past 2 years they've served between 1,200 and 1,400 needy families here in the city of Paterson. And I'm committed and dedicated to helping any way I can to spread the word so that donations come in—food donations, money donations, and they can use volunteers every now and then because I say they have a small dedicated crew but any help you can provide will be greatly appreciated.

Thank you for listening.
